

4

ANSWER

No. It is wrong to submit or copy from any work that has already been submitted previously even if it is your own - this is called self-plagiarism and is a form of cheating.

If you had the correct answer, move forward one place on the board

3

ANSWER

No. This is considered plagiarism and cheating. It is wrong to submit or copy from any work that has already been submitted previously. It is also cheating because it is an act of dishonesty as the work submitted is not an original piece of work.

You should contact your subject coordinator and Student Services to apply for special consideration and request an extension.

If you had the correct answer, move forward one place on the board

2

ANSWER

C. It is never acceptable to purchase assignments or assessment work.

This type of misconduct is called "contract cheating" and the penalty is likely to be automatic failure of the subject.

If you had the correct answer, move forward one place on the board

1

ANSWER

D - None are acceptable in an online assessment

Completing online assessments together is a common improper practice amongst students.

Quizzes are designed to test your knowledge on a topic and cheating will only hamper your efforts to truly understand the material in the subject.

If you had the correct answer, move forward one place on the board

8

ANSWER

E. None of the above are acceptable.

Fabrication of information is just as serious as the lack of acknowledgement of sources or cheating.

If you had the correct answer, move forward one place on the board

7

ANSWER

D. Explaining the original work in your own words and in a more condensed form

When you paraphrase an original source, you should express the work in your own words and the underlying meaning must remain the same. Paraphrasing also requires condensing the original source.

If you had the correct answer, move forward one place on the board

6

ANSWER

B. In a group assignment, everyone is responsible for ensuring the assignment is prepared with integrity.

If one student plagiarises, everyone in the group will be investigated for cheating, even if you were unaware a team mate was doing the wrong thing.

If you had the correct answer, move forward one place on the board

5

ANSWER

Yes you are
However it is best to avoid taking them with you. Get your friend to talk you through them and make notes of your own. This will help you learn the content rather than just memorising.

If you had the correct answer, move forward one place on the board

1

Multiple choice question.
Select one response.

When completing a individual online assessment quiz at home, which of the following are considered cheating

- A) Do the quiz with a friend and share questions and answers
- B) Take screen shots of the questions to share with other students
- C) Giving your answers to another student
- D) None of the above are acceptable

2

Multiple choice question.
Select one response.

Is it acceptable to purchase assignments or assessments online?

- A) Yes
- B) Only when your assignment is less than 20% of the total mark for the subject
- C) Never

3

Select one response.

A student broke his arm and was in hospital for several days. This meant he was not able to write his assignment for one subject. To solve this problem, he submitted an assignment that a friend had written for the same subject in the previous year.

Is this acceptable?

Yes / No

4

Select one response.

You have failed a subject and you are attempting it again. The essay topic for your major assessment is the same. Rather than write a new essay, you submit the one you used last semester to save time.

Is this acceptable?

Yes / No

5

Select one response.

You missed class due to illness, are you able look at someones lecture notes to see if you missed anything?

Yes / No

6

Multiple choice question.
Select one response.

In a group assignment, whose responsibility is it to ensure the assignment is completed with integrity and no cheating or plagiarism has occurred?

- A) Each student is responsible only for the work they did
- B) All students are responsible for all parts
- C) No one is responsible
- D) The subject coordinator is responsible

7

Multiple choice question.
Select one response.

Which of the following options is the acceptable method for paraphrasing?

- A) Using the thesaurus to change a few key words
- B) Explaining the original work in your own words in a longer way
- C) Expressing the original work in your own words but changing the underlying meaning
- D) Explaining the original work in your own words and in a more condensed form

8

Multiple choice question.
Select one response.

When research is required for an assignment - which of these are acceptable?

- A) Falsify data or reports
- B) Falsify interviews
- C) Make up sources or references
- D) Manipulate data or research to support your desired answer
- E) None of the above are acceptable

12

ANSWER

E. All of the above

For students excluded or suspended from university, this will appear on your academic transcript.

Professional associations can apply to check the record of a UTS graduate.

You may be prevented from joining some professional bodies if you've engaged in misconduct and found guilty.

In some instances, UTS must notify the Department of Immigration.

If you had the correct answer, move forward one place on the board

11

ANSWER

E. All of the above.

The penalty for misconduct varies according to the severity and intention to cheat or mislead.

No warnings are provided - all students should be aware of the rules surrounding academic integrity.

If you had the correct answer, move forward one place on the board

10

ANSWER

C. Each student is individually responsible for reading and understanding the rules related to academic integrity.

Not knowing the rules is not an acceptable reason to engage in misconduct. Information on academic integrity and academic misconduct are printed in every single university subject outline.

If you had the correct answer, move forward one place on the board

9

ANSWER

E. None of the above

Plagiarism extends to all manner of works and does not exclude speeches, designs or images. Any work that is not your own must be acknowledged appropriately.

If you had the correct answer, move forward one place on the board

16

ANSWER

No

When paraphrasing - the way you express the author(s) work must be different than how they phrased it, even if the reference is included.

If you had the correct answer, move forward one place on the board

15

ANSWER

C. Yes - students should strive to follow these ethics and codes while studying and during clinical work

Your career in your profession begins at university and you should strive to follow your profession's code of ethics and conduct while studying.

Your studies won't just be looking at textbooks, it may involve role plays or simulations where you should strive to act in a manner appropriate for your profession.

If you had the correct answer, move forward one place on the board

14

ANSWER

D. A factual account of events

Reflective writing tasks are focused on you and how you are learning and growing/changing from your experiences.

There is no best or correct way to feel about your experiences - your teachers are looking for your honest reflections.

If you had the correct answer, move forward one place on the board

13

ANSWER

C. Sources must be recognised

Even when paraphrasing, we must acknowledge the original source of the material.

If you had the correct answer, move forward one place on the board

9

Multiple choice question.
Select one response.

Which of the following can be copied and not classed as plagiarism?

- A) Written words
- B) Images
- C) Designs
- D) Speeches
- E) None of the above

10

Select one response.

There are serious penalties for academic misconduct. Whose responsibility is it to ensure students are aware of rules and regulations related to academic integrity?

- A) The subject coordinator
- B) The tutor
- C) The student

11

Multiple choice question.
Select one response

Which of the following may be applied as a penalty for misconduct?

- A) The university takes back a degree that they have granted
- B) Termination of your enrollment
- C) 0 awarded for the subject
- D) 0 awarded for the subject
- E) All of the above

12

Multiple choice question.
Select one response.

Who can find out if you've been found guilty of academic misconduct?

- A) Anyone - if you've been excluded or suspended from UTS because of misconduct, it states this on your transcript
- B) Employers or professional associations who make enquiries to the university
- C) Academic staff, upon request
- D) Department of Immigration
- E) All of the above

13

Multiple choice question.
Select one response.

When paraphrasing, from one or multiple sources, is it necessary to acknowledge the original source(s)?

- A) No - you're using your own words, so it is your own new work
- B) No - because you are not directly quoting the material
- C) Yes - you must acknowledge any material that is not your own original work

14

Multiple choice question.
Select one response.

You are required to complete a reflective journal for a subject. What is NOT acceptable in a reflection?

- A) Your weekly thoughts on how you feel about your experiences
- B) Your reactions to a confronting experience
- C) How you've changed after your experiences
- D) A factual account of events

15

Multiple choice question.
Select one response.

In your area of study - there is a professional code of ethics and conduct. Does this apply to you as a student?

- A) No - only when I formally join the profession
- B) Yes - but only when I am completing clinical work
- C) Yes - students should strive to follow these ethics and codes while studying and during clinical work
- D) What is a code of ethics?

16

Select one response.

You've paraphrased an original source by changing a few words and shifting sentences around. You have the correct reference.

Is this acceptable?

Yes / No